Selecting the appropriate licence

Do I need to order a MMOG.np licence for each customer who requests an assessment?

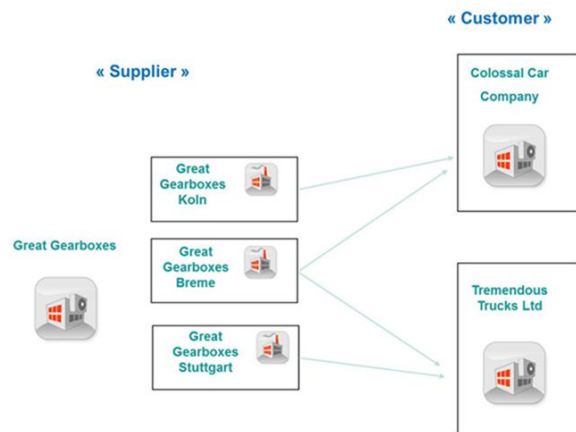

No. In MMOG.np, you need to order a licence for the number of sites (plant locations) within your company that need to be assessed. You can create assessments of these sites for an unlimited number of customers.

What is the definition of a “site” in MMOG.np?

A site is a plant location within your company that needs to be assessed.

In MMOG.np, each supplier site can send an unlimited number of assessments to an unlimited number of customers (same as with Excel workbook for MMOG v4).

In the example below, the supplier Great Gearboxes has 3 different sites. Each site sends assessments to customers: Colossal Car Company and Tremendous Trucks Ltd.

You need to identify the number of sites (plant locations) within your company that send assessments to customers and order the appropriate licence.

I have 2 different supplier codes for the same plant for the same customer. Do I need to order a licence for 2 sites?

In MMOG.np if you have 2 different supplier codes for the same site (plant location) for the same customer it means that, logically, you have 2 different sites. In that case, our advice is that you should contact your customer to confirm that they really need a separate assessment for each supplier code for the same site.

We are a global company with many different sites. What are the licencing options?

MMOG.np is very flexible and you can tailor your MMOG ecosystem(s) to suit the organisation of your company:

1. You can have a global company account that includes all your sites
  2. You can have different accounts for different groups of sites (e.g. by region, by product type, etc.)
  3. You can have an individual account for each of your sites
1. If you decide to set up a global account for all your sites, you need to buy one single licence which will cover the total number of sites to be assessed (the number can be increased later, if necessary). You will need to set up and manage the ecosystem for all your sites centrally.
  2. If you wish to split your sites into separate groups, you need to buy separate licences for each of those groups. Each group will be set up and managed as a separate ecosystem.

- If you decide to have a separate account for each of your sites, you need to buy a separate licence for each site. Each site will then be responsible to manage and set up its own ecosystem.

Global or group ecosystems will allow you to get an overview on all assessments submitted to all customers by all sites covered in a single ecosystem, . When the MMOG Analytics Module is available at the end of this year, you will also be able to run analytics at ecosystem level.

If you elect to set up separate ecosystem for each of your sites, you will get separate overview of assessments and analytics per site.

The price per site remains the same whichever option you select.

Adding sites to an MMOG.np licence

I purchased a licence and I have already set up my Ecosystem. How can I increase the number of sites in my Ecosystem?

- Go to the Odette web shop <https://www.odette.org/mmog/information#mmog-licence>
- Order another licence for the additional number of sites (plant locations) to be assessed

After receiving your order confirmation email:

- Go to the MMOG.np online application
- Request your Licence Key for the additional number of sites indicating that the request is an upgrade for an existing account

You will then receive a new licence to cover existing and new sites to be assessed.

Can I assign a purchase order and select the payment method when ordering on the Odette website?
